

Oksana Bolduieva, Olena Bohma

Justification of the appropriateness of applying a system analysis and a systematic approach as tools for scientific and philosophical understanding of the essence of the phenomenon of economic security of the country

The article established that the formation of a complete concept of the country's economic security requires a scientific and philosophical understanding and justification of the corresponding phenomenon. The feasibility of applying a systematic approach to substantiate the category of economic security of the country in the framework of the application of the philosophical methodology of scientific knowledge is justified. It has been determined that a systematic analysis is also an effective tool for studying the country's economic security as an integrated system. In the framework of determining the applied aspects of the methodology of scientific knowledge of the laws of the phenomenon of economic security, the effectiveness of using an integrative approach in the study of economic security problems has been substantiated.

Thus, a clear understanding of the essence of the phenomenon of economic security of the country and the development of its completed concept leads to the mandatory passage of the indicated category of the process of scientific and philosophical understanding and justification, the tools of which are the system approach and system analysis.

In turn, the application of a system approach and system analysis methods will make it possible during the study to identify a set of functionally interconnected elements of the country's economic security, structure them in a certain hierarchical order in order to establish signs of integrity and determine system functions and properties that are different from those that are inherent in individual constituent elements.